

- Sign Up
- Sign In

- HOME
- Mypage
- [Global\[A-M\]](#)
- [Global\[N-Z\]](#)
- UK,USA,Can,Aus
- [Europe\[A-M\]](#)
- [Europe\[N-Z\]](#)
- Islamic
- Elsewhere
- Ref
- All Rooms
- My Rooms

Norwegian Room

- Created by Netcon
- View Rooms

Information

For gjenerobring og beskytte de 4 friheter i Norge

Members: 16

Latest Activity: 2 hours ago

Promote

2 members promoted this

Share Twitter Facebook

Like

Discussion Forum

The Muslim Brotherhood - by Norwegian TV

Started by Alan Lake Jan 31.

Arctic mosque plan iced over Saudi funding

Started by Alan Lake Nov. 11, 2010.

Articles by \(or concerning\) Fjordman \(translated into Italian - Links in original Language\)

Started by Indoeuropean Jun. 9, 2010.

Attempted Assassination of Publisher of Satanic Verses by Rushdie

Started by Indoeuropean Feb. 28, 2010.

Islamic people threaten of massive terror Retaliation for a Cartoon's Publication

Started by Indoeuropean Feb. 26, 2010.

Muslim Racism in Norway 3 Replies

Started by Netcon. Last reply by Alan Lake Feb. 14, 2010.

How Islamic Employees find the Way to destroy your Business

Started by Indoeuropean Jan. 18, 2010.

Liberal Muslims in Norway challenge official Islamic Institutions

Started by Indoeuropean Jan. 18, 2010.

martine vik magnussen 1 Reply

Started by Francis Xavier. Last reply by Netcon Dec. 22, 2009.

- View All

Comment Wall

Add a Comment

You need to be a member of Norwegian Room to add comments!

Comment by Philip Smeeton 2 hours ago
You're right Alan.

Comment by Alan Lake 2 hours ago

Apparently, in a long screed Anders Behring Breivik posted on line, he did this attack to protest against the way that Islam is taking over large parts of Europe. By attacking the leftist politicians that are enabling this, the chickens have actually come home to roost - altho I'm sure it won't be depicted that way.

Comment by Philip Smeeton 18 hours ago

Norge hadde en vakker kultur med nesten ingen kriminalitet, men Arbeiderpartiet og andre, tillot en bølge av kriminalitet og innvandring drukne den. Det har blitt et søppel kultur. Jeg har ingen forståelse for terroristens handlinger men jeg forstår hans vrede.

Comment by Philip Smeeton on July 17, 2011 at 10:20am

Hear, hear!

Comment by Alan Lake on July 16, 2011 at 2:11pm

I agree with those feelings. I find myself becoming more hard line day by day. The emasculation and ineffectiveness of our governments is maddening.

Our current leaders seek, thru delusion and ignorance, to destroy our freedoms and national integrity. When this thing finally breaks open, there will be mayhem.

Comment by Philip Smeeton on July 15, 2011 at 11:54am

Fundamentalists pledge to apply Shariaa in Britain 13/07/2011 By Mohammed Al Shafey London, Asharq Al-Awsat- Hard-line fundamentalists have pledged to ban alcohol and gender mixing in new areas throughout the United Kingdom where Shariaa will be imposed. According to this plan, a large number of posters bearing the slogans "no gambling", "no music and concerts", "no nudity or vice", and "no drugs and smoking" will be distributed. The posters announce "Beware: You are entering a Shariaa-controlled zone - Islamic rules enforced." The fundamentalists are scheduled to start the plan in Waltham Forest, part of the London City Council, later this month and they are also claiming that thousands of "Shariaa police" will monitor the compliance with the Shariaa rules in the streets. Lawyer Anjem Choudary, former secretary general of Al-Muhajiroun and Al-Ghurabaa movements in Britain, has called for implementing this plan as an alternative to the government's attempts to combat violent extremism under the "prevention" strategy. He told Asharq Al-Awsat that "there are 25 areas in Britain under the British antiterrorism law which were described as centers for extremists. But we will visit these areas in the suburbs of Birmingham and Manchester." He added: As Islamists, we have a clear stand on gender mixing, taking drugs, gambling, vice, and concerts where everything becomes mixed up and also have a clear stand on democracy which we consider "unbelief." He said "the Shariaa police will include others who do not belong to the fundamentalist trend." The former secretary general of Al-Muhajiroun, "Al-Ghurabaa, and Islam4UK warned "the antiterrorism strategy approved by British Home Secretary Theresa May will be confronted during the next two weeks starting with Waltham Forest where the campaign to distribute the posters about the Shariaa controlled zones will begin." He added: "This means that the Muslim community in this zone will not tolerate drugs, alcohol, nudity, gambling, usury, or the free mixing of men and women which are the fruits of Western civilization." He pointed out that "there will be a very intensive campaign to distribute the posters to Muslim and non-Muslim communities about what the Shariaa means economically, socially, and politically." He went on to explain that "a march will target Waltham Forest, including Walthamstow and Leyton. We will administer the zone as one under Shariaa and plant in the long term the seeds of an Islamic emirate. We wish to create a zone where Muslims can live together, deal among themselves, and interact with each other instead of interacting with society at large." The former lawyer added "there are 25 zones in various parts of the country which the government has classified as ones suffering from the problem of violent extremism. We will go to these same zones which refuse to apply the Shariaa rules so as to apply them as this is the ideal way for dealing with the consumption of alcohol, vice, and the pattern of hooliganism in British cities. We are living among non-Muslims but should distinguish ourselves from them." Choudary announced in May plans to form Islamic "guardian angels" teams to help implement the Shariaa in various parts of the United Kingdom but changed his mind later on and came to believe that a "Shariaa police" would play a better role than the traditional police in maintaining order inside Muslim areas. Choudary said "we now have hundreds, and even thousands, throughout the country who are ready to go out into the streets on patrols for us and print between 10,000 and 50,000 posters for distribution." However, preacher Omar Bakri, founder of Al-Muhajiroun and "Al-Ghurabaa movements which were disbanded before he left Britain for Tripoli in north Lebanon after the 7/7 attacks in London, has told Asharq Al-Awsat "the true Muslim is required to implement what he can of the Shariaa in all matters of his life and to call on the society in which he lives to monotheism and apply Islamic Shariaa as it is the only divine one that is suitable for every place and age and has the divine cure for all the problems of man and humanity." Bakri, who presented himself as "an expert in the Islamic movements' affairs and chairman of the Salaf Trend in Lebanon and member of the Shariaa committee", added that "application of what is possible of Islamic Shariaa among Muslims in Europe is one of the practical examples of the call to turn to God." He added that "the phenomenon of complying with Islam and converting to it in the West in general and in Britain in particular is best evidence that Islam is the Shariaa and principles spreading the most in the West."

“Beware: You are entering a Shariaa-controlled zone - Islamic rules enforced.”

I cannot describe the reaction this engenders in me, it is beyond words and beyond feelings. The nearest I can get is to describe my reaction as one of impotent rage. I feel totally powerless in the face of a wrong that no one in power intends to do anything about. These are grounds to deport every single Muslim from Britain, Europe and America for treasonous activity. This is an arrogance and an intolerance beyond anything the so-called British racists have been accused of. They are setting up a separate state encompassing 25 areas of our sovereign nation (Areas our police are already afraid to enter). That is, a foreign Islamic nation has moved unopposed into Britain and blatantly declared its intention to conquer and subdue us piece by piece until all of Britain is an Islamic state. If there are not laws against what they are doing then it is time to create such laws. What do you call it when a foreign power invades your country and your own government offers no opposition? Insanity? betrayal?

Comment by Albert Case on July 15, 2011 at 11:36am

Oslo Car Fires Highlight Threat to Norway's Future

A growing Muslim enclave outside of the city is a hotbed of crime and Sharia.

Taken together, two seemingly unrelated news stories from Norway paint a grim picture of that city's future.

First, you need to know that Oslo is a sprawling, low-lying city, more of a small-scale Los Angeles than a small-scale New York. Out on its eastern flank is a large valley called Groruddalen which, a few years ago, was a sleepy mishmash of industry and suburban apartment blocks. It is now quickly becoming an urban center all its own. It is said that if current trends continue, Groruddalen will, within a couple of decades, dwarf downtown Oslo itself as a population center.

One not-so-little detail: the reason for Groruddalen's rapid growth is that it is a destination for new Muslim immigrants. Groruddalen is, in short, a Muslim enclave in the making.

This is a first for Oslo. Other cities in Europe already have Muslim enclaves — neighborhoods that are “no-go” areas for non-Muslims and that Muslim leaders consider autonomous or semi-autonomous territories, subject to sharia law and to the dictates of local imams. In these areas, young men terrorize police officers or firefighters or ambulance workers who dare to cross into their territory. Sharia dress codes are strictly enforced. And cars are set on fire.

Until recently, by the strictest definition, Oslo hasn't really had a Muslim enclave. Yes, it has neighborhoods — Grønland, Tøyen — that are heavily Muslim. There are parts of these neighborhoods where you wouldn't want to venture at night, or perhaps even in the day. And even in broad daylight, on a crowded major artery, a gay couple, say, would be well advised not to walk hand-in-hand. But until recently, as I say, Oslo hasn't had anything you could unequivocally call a “no-go” area.

In the last couple of years, however, it's been clear that Groruddalen is fast approaching that status. The rise in Muslim population in the valley has been accompanied by a variety of challenging developments, including gang wars and a rise in rapes and other violent crimes. The newspapers increasingly report on donnybrooks involving dozens of Muslim gang members; these often take place at or near the subway station in Ellingsrudåsen, a neighborhood in Groruddalen.

Yet another grim indication that the day of reckoning is near appeared in the July 11 issue of VG. The night before, it was reported, something had happened that is unprecedented in Oslo: eleven cars had been set on fire in Ellingsrudåsen. All of them had been destroyed, and three others had sustained fire damage. The same night, another fire in the same area destroyed a car and Moped.

You've read about the large-scale torching of cars in the suburbs of Paris — crimes that the authorities seem powerless to stop, crimes that are the very symbol of the chaos into which the City of Light, among many other civilized metropolises, is sinking? Well, this is how it starts.

This brings us to the other news story I mentioned at the top. Before I get around to it, let me point out that only a few days ago it was reported that police departments in cities across Norway are being strained to the breaking point by the need to deal with people who go out on the town and get bombed on Friday and Saturday nights. “Weekend drunks require all police,” read the headline in Aftenposten. Part of the reason for this is Norwegian drinking habits. Norwegians are a highly disciplined people, but on the weekend, as if to let out all the suppressed emotion, many of them imbibe too much and get extremely rowdy.

But the larger part of the reason for this helplessness on the part of the police is that Norway, although a rich nation, has chosen not to spend much of its wealth on law and order. Talk to Norwegian politicians, professors, and journalists and you'll soon discover that there's a lingering sixties-ish view of the police as fascist pigs. Norway wastes millions of kroner every year on “development aid” that ends up largely in the pockets of corrupt African dictators; it pours millions more into the pockets of non-Western immigrants who have become masters at exploiting the welfare system; for heaven's sake, the Norwegian government even funds anarchists. It's not entirely misguided for a Norwegian citizen to feel that his tax money is going less to fight the crime that threatens his home, his self, and his business than to support criminals.

Even so, it was a surprise to read on July 11 — the same day that the newspapers reported the car fires — that out of 430 new graduates of the Norwegian Police University College, only fourteen have been offered jobs on a police force anywhere in the country. Fourteen!

Now, you can't blame this on the economy. Norway is a rich country (which is to say that the government is rich, not the people), and it's almost the only place in the Western world whose job market hasn't been decimated by the economic slump of the last few years. No, this situation is the product of state budgetary priorities that are sheer lunacy. A police union spokesman complained that this shamefully low hiring figure represents a total betrayal of promises made by Minister of Justice Knut Storberget. And Roy Vega of document.no notes that Norwegian police strength has declined steadily in recent years to the point where there are now barely over 1.5 officers per 1000 inhabitants. Next door in Sweden, 3500 new positions in the police force have been added in the last five years, bringing the number up to 2.2 (which is approximately the minimum number recommended by the UN).

A few months ago, when I called the Oslo police and asked them to send over a couple of cops for what I considered an important matter, I was told that they wouldn't be able to dispatch anybody for several days; when I attempted to explain the urgency of the situation, the policewoman on the phone was apologetic but explained that their resources were paper-thin: at the moment, in the whole of Oslo, she volunteered, there was only a single patrol car cruising the streets.

So here's what we've got: a huge part of the national capital that is actively severing itself from the larger community and social order — and a national government that, instead of responding to this aggression with assertive policing, has chosen to steadily cut down on the strength of its police. All I can say is that if you were a government official and you wanted the Islamists to take control of large swaths of the country, this is exactly how you'd go about letting it happen.

Not that I consider Norwegian leaders to be guilty of treason, of consciously aiding and abetting the forces of sharia. No, they're just unwitting allies — useful idiots. They're socialist fools who believe that a low-level police presence is the sign of an advanced, peaceful society — and all of whom, not coincidentally, live in parts of Oslo that are a long way from Groruddalen.

Comment by Albert Case on June 9, 2011 at 12:14am

Comment by Albert Case on May 16, 2011 at 1:25am

Comment by Alan Lake on March 25, 2011 at 1:07am

I've seen those 2 videos already. I think it was here:

<http://4freedoms.ning.com/group/norway/forum/topics/muslim-racism-i...>

but the videos have since been removed. I hope it doesn't happen to the 2 below.

- < Previous
- 1
- 2
- Next >
- Page

Members (16)

- View All

Welcome to
4 Freedoms Community

Sign Up

or Sign In

You can also sign up with:

-
-
-

Mission Statement

Our political system should give as much freedom as possible, but not so much as to tolerate its own destruction. Hence, all members support these 4 Freedoms.

1. Freedom of Speech: any speech allowed - except that advocating the end of free speech

2. Freedom of Election: any party allowed - except one advocating the end of democracy

3. Freedom from Discrimination:

all citizens are equally protected by secular law

4. Freedom of Religion: the law does not apply to statements about the immaterial

How To Follow a Discussion

Either post a comment on a discussion, or click on 'Follow' at the bottom, so that new comments will be emailed to you. Keywords:

Women Terrorism Burqa Iran

EDL Multiculturalism Mosque

Persecution Christians EU

UN Charlene Downes

© 2011 Created by Netcon Powered by

Badges | Report an Issue | Terms of Service