Dear Colleague

BBC 2 starts a major new drama-documentary series called If next Wednesday, 10 March at 9.00pm. You may have seen trailers for it already. The first episode looks at what would happen If ... the lights go out in a few years time as a result of not heeding the warnings about security of energy supply that face us now.

I and colleagues in NIA were involved in briefing the programme makers, and Tony Cooper, our Chairman, was interviewed at length and appears on the programme. According to those who have seen it in advance, the programme is a powerful caution against relying on imported gas for Britain's electricity, and losing indigenous capability.

The programme will be followed at 10.30 by a discussion on Newsnight about the issues raised.

I hope that as many of you as possible will be able to watch it, despite the rival attraction of Footballers' Wives!

Best regards

Keith
