Force to go into the Craggan and Bogside needs to be backed by playing-up the certainty that while such action possible it would result in serious casualties on both sides. Articles such as that run by Daily Telegraph reflecting contrary Military information did not help.

4. Rubber Bullets. The comment in the Times on the death of the boy on 20th April that any soldier would be mad to insert anything into a rubber bullet lays us open to any number of suitably doctored rubber bullets being produced as evidence against us.
